What is in a face? Why, anything and everything, for a young face is like a young mind and body—flexible and quick to change. It is an outlet for that natural tendency of youthful emotions to move from within to without a hundred times or more during the course of a day.

Perplexity is a furrowed brow; determination is a firmly set mouth; enthusiasm is an irresistible glint in the eyes; pleasure is a sweet smile when that certain someone walks you down the hall—a face flashes reaction faster than any tongue could carry the news.

Facial expression is like a neon sign that says, "I'm sad." "That's a riot!" "Why?" "Let's go!" "Thanks." The twinkling of an eye, the set of the mouth, the twitching of the nose—they tell people's stories and people are the story of . . .

Highland Senior High School

Winter Months Witness Construction at Highland High; Workshop and Special Classrooms Included in Addition

Great mounds of freshly excavated earth were but a forerunner of things to come. Students and teachers alike watched with intense curiosity as engineers and builders began on Highland High's new edition.

The cafeteria offered a focal point from which one could view advancements made by construction crews.

Stemming from a seemingly endless demand for student and faculty facilities, the plans included a graphic arts department, a fine arts department, wood and metal shops. Also under construction were an automotive mechanics work shop and a journalism wing. This wing will accommodate journalism classes and publications editors.

Future plans call for a printing shop to publish the TROJANAL.

Construction, begun in December, made for several inconveniences. Those students riding the bus weren't too taken with the idea of trekking around the school to reach a usable entrance. The builders also made quite a lot of noise at times, but the disadvantages were forgotten when construction began to materialize.

With one's imagination he could just visualize that which the builders had in mind. The promise of new classrooms and corridors, free from the customary signs of occupation, sharpened interest.

Students and teachers eagerly awaited the finished product.

Framed by silhouetted cafeteria windows, rudimentary signs of construction are visible. The new edition was begun in December, amid winter winds and snow. This picturesque scene divulges the construction sight after a day's work is completed.

Parade Begins Sixth Annual Homecoming First Place Trophy Presented to Seniors

Straining on tiptoe, attempting to see over the crowds, the town's spectators awaited the sight of Highland High's band which would mark the beginning of the parade. The sixth annual Homecoming parade was on its route to the football field.

Climaxing a hectic week of frenzied activity, the parade wound its way down Kennedy Avenue passed the anxious crowds lining the street. The parade was strewn with unique floats constructed by the classes and clubs of the high school.

The parade having reached its destination, the bonfire was kindled and set afire creating a flaming finale to the parade.

For the first time, floats were not dismantled and used as fuel for the bonfire. They were saved in order to be displayed on the football field preceding the game and the announcement of the winners of the trophies.

The seniors were both surprised and thrilled when their float, "Bottle 'Em," claimed first prize.

French Club's "Oui Can Can Chesterton" and "Key to Victory" designed by the Key Club placed second and third respectively.

Awarding of the trophies ended the initial festivities and made way for an exciting game and a coronation.

Launching a promising effort, the Trojans scored the first touchdown in their sixth Homecoming game.

Half-time brought excitement to a peak as the crowd anxiously awaited the announcement of their 1964 Homecoming Queen.

Expectation transferred to a roar of applause for newly-crowned Peg Gargano.

After half-time, attention centered on an ill-fated Trojan squad, losing the first Homecoming game in HHS's short history.

Fans continued celebrating at a dance featuring Rick Gaston's band, highlighting a memorable evening.

Lettermen Concert Scores Success at Highland High

Undercurrents of excitement and frenzy crackled throughout Highland High. The Lettermen were coming.

Anticipation, swelling since late summer, emerged at its climatic peak on October 5, 1964.

The Lettermen first appeared on the scene at 5:45 at the Scherwood Club for a press conference. Spirited questions and answers vollied between the Lettermen and eager representatives from area schools.

A scant two hours later, the group appeared on stage in the HHS gym, where John Gaston and Cynthia Kubacki, co-chairmen of the concert, introduced them.

"West Side Story," "She Cried," and "People" were a few of the many favorites the audience had awaited.

The obliging team was ignited by its ecstatic audience, which was so eager to participate. A standing ovation invited the group to continue their performance. They returned for a half-hour encore that was highly appreciated.

Everything not bolted down was taken as a memento, of the show and hundreds of autographs were scribbled to fans who would treasure them for years to come.

Witty, intelligent responses by the Lettermen absorb the interest of young press representatives. Student reporters from the Calumet area schools attending the afternoon press conference at the Scherwood Club.

A clever imitation of Elvis Presley's "Love Me Tender," an amusing rendition of "Runaway," as well as his emotion-packed version of "What Kind of Fool Am I," won the heart of the crowd. Crashing sounds of hammers, the scraping of saws against wood, the smell of drying paint—these are but the beginning stages of a student production.

"Fireman, Save My Child!" was the first of many plays presented during the year. Enacted by Forensic Club members, it became the second such "Melodrama."

Drama Club was the next to mount the stage. A trio of one-act plays was presented including "Trifles," "The Marriage Proposal," and "Aria da Capo."

Next to appear was a Spanish Club cast in "Sunday Costs Five Pesos."

"Mrs. McThing" was the Drama Club's annual three-act play. Starring seniors Diane Dickinson and Nancy Pinkerton, the production was a mixture of comedy, mystery, and magic.

Written by senior Joan Silverman, the 1965 operetta, "Love Makes the World Go 'Round," became the first major production at Highland composed by a student.

BELOW: Highland High's first "Mr. Basketball," Denny Clark, is presented with a trophy by cheerleader Peggie Brannen. All senior boys on the basketball squad who did not hold a previous title were eligible. Besides Denny, nominees were Steve Banka, Rich Kalmas, Chuck Wagner, Rex Burton and Harry Withrow. Pat Lowery, Class president, expressed the hope that this idea initiated by the Class of '65 would become an established tradition.

Key Club Sweetheart Vicki Rowe Reigns; Various Other Kings and Queens Chosen

Subject to transient decorative changes, Highland High's cafeteria hosted several dances and soc-hops throughout the year.

The Mr. Football Soc-Hop followed the close of the football season. It was the third such dance, continuing the tradition. Daryl Downing was honored as Mr. Football.

Replacing the G.A.A. formal was the "Snow Ball" sponsored by the Teen Board. This turnabout was climaxed by the crowning of Bruce Larrabee and Mary Lee Arndt as King and Queen. Mary Lee's Court consisted of Janet Humphrey, Judy Blaskovich, Charlotte Crucean, Peggie Brannen and Karyn Carrico. King nominees were Denny Clark, Mike Fox, Mike Forkasdi, Bill Mulligan, and Denny Carlile.

A southern background was the motif of the Key Club Sweetheart Dance, "Neath the Southern Moon." Miss Vicki Rowe was chosen by those attending to reign as 1965 Key Club Sweetheart.

An innovation of the Senior Class was the Mr. Basketball Soc-Hop. Denny Clark was chosen as the most valuable player by those present.

Juniors Create Underwater Scene, "Evening Ebb Tide"

How very massive that previously "too small" gym seemed as juniors labored to transform it into their underwater paradise, "Evening Ebb Tide."

Saturday, May twenty-third, brought a frantic last-minute completion to the 1964 Prom. That night, tired, but satisfied juniors opened the "hatches" of their sub-aqueous world to upperclassmen.

With the music of Dean Conner and his orchestra, came an evening of dance, then the strains of "Ebb Tide," and finally, a royal couple and the traditional Grand March.

Tempo changed as After Prom brought mind-reading and comedy acts, Oscar and the Majestics, and plenty of food.

The next day guests and decorations were gone, but unlike the world of Shangri-La, the magic of "Evening Ebb Tide" will last long after departure.

Class of '64 Experiences Mingled Emotions At Climatic End of High School Career

After being caught up in a continuous whirlwind of activities for four years, seniors find graduation approaching all too swiftly. Not knowing whether to anticipate or to fear the future, the senior experiences mingled emotions. Uncertainty, sadness and dismay are reflected in the countenance of the somber and the teary-eyed on graduation day, 1964. The excitement of the occasion dances in the eyes of the ambitious alumni-to-be.

Personal and parental pride is evident throughout the gymnasium from the top bleacher to the last seat on the floor. Throughout the final year of high school, nostalgia often overcomes the sentimental. A time for contemplation, graduation brings with it many memories. Embarrassing incidents experienced as freshmen, silly stunts of sophomore year, eventful junior year and significant senior year are all fondly recalled.

Senior pictures, fitting for caps and gowns, baccalaureate and commencement practice, senior week, mailing announcements, open houses—all are routinely indicative of graduation; yet, each has its special significance to the Class of '64. Led by the class president, seniors symbolically switch their tassels, thus becoming alumni, ready to meet new challenges and experience.

RIGHT: Addressing the assembled class of '64 for the last official time, president Jim Hardesty imparts a message not soon to be forgotten by his classmates. BELOW: Contrasting reactions to their new status as alumni are expressed in the faces of Nancy Worcester and Jill Wood.

As Highland High's first representatives to attend the journalism institute at Ohio University, Dave Spanier, Cheryl Reed, Barbara Mayhew, Carole Dorsch, Janet Strange, and Maryk Abblett spent one week on the Athens, Ohio campus studying various phases of journalism. As senior staff members, Dave and Carole participated in advanced courses in photography and yearbook copy, respectively, while juniors Barbara, Jan, and Maryk learned yearbook basics. Cheryl, the only TROJANAL representative, studied newspaper procedures at the summer workshop.

Institutors Set Record in '64 Summer

Highland High's summer institutors reached a record high during the 1964 vacation. Through these summer workshops students receive practical knowledge from experts and from their active participation.

As in past years the majority of these students represented Highland publications. Indiana University, Michigan State, and Ohio University hosted these young journalists for yearbook and newspaper work.

Having an interest in history and government, six juniors took part in mock state governments at Girls' State and Boys' State.

Students also attended smaller institutes, including a drama workshop, a study for student librarians, and a student council session. A Spanish exchange student was also sponsored.

Representing Highland High at Girls' and Boys' State, Diane Dickinson, Sue Carlson, Margie Haburay, Dave Evinson, Jeff Minter, and Jack Leach participated in mock Indiana governments at the two one-week summer institutes at Indiana University. The six delegates and their alternates were chosen for their interest in government and history by guidance counselor recommendations and a junior class vote. Through active participation these students learned from experience the workings and procedure of state and local government.

Studying yearbook work at Michigan State's institute were Karen Fleener, Charlene Browning, and Judy Rost. Diane Dickinson attended the newspaper division at Michigan.

In preparation for their student librarian work, Nancy Irish, Marilyn Dunn, and Penny Stan took part in the summer library institute at Indiana University. Janet Strange participated in the Student Council institute at I.U., while Maryk substituted for Kathy Roelie, Council president, at the National Association of Student Councils' institute at Kelly's Island, Michigan. Representing Highland High School, Drama Club members Diane Dickinson and Vicki Rowe studied drama at a two-week summer institute at Michigan State.

Students Study Expression and Comprehension in Both Foreign and English Language Classes and Speech

Young, active, inquisitive minds need a means by which they can express their thoughts and questions. Language study, whether English or foreign, is a media for such worthwhile communication—a media which becomes more and more important as our spheres shrink in time and distance, yet expand in culture, thought, and mysteries.

Through rigid theme requirements and in class spontaneous writing, Highland High students receive ample practice in expressing themselves clearly and quickly.

"Learning to think on your feet" is the main objective of beginning speech, which offers an introduction in extemporaneous speaking, debate, dramatic reading, and impromptu work. Advanced courses in debate and drama offer specialized concentration for talented and interested students.

Realizing the importance of understanding, as well as expressing, students study a variety of both American and English authors, forms, and styles. They also experience the foreign elements of literature and language in their French, German, Spanish, and Latin classes.

LEFT: Mrs. Schoeben, English teacher, emphasizes a significant point in an effort to convey information to the students. Commercial Courses Prepare Business World Candidates Business world candidates find the commercial curriculum to be adequate training, regardless of what designated area of business they may desire to enter. Upon seeking entry into the world of business, alumni find the training courses offered at Highland High to be invaluable.

Would-be secretaries are enabled to learn the rudiments of secretarial work on the high school level. Hours of practice in and out of class result in speedy, accurate typing abilities. Usage of shorthand symbols is applicable in practically any occupation. Education as to the significance of keeping clear, accurate journal entries is obtained in bookkeeping classes, general business and business law classes, providing a basic background for any business occupation.

Opportunities to view practical application of these skills are found via various field trips.

Art Talents Cultivated

Whether it be a dexterous hand, gifted voice, or creative imagination, teenage art talents must be cultivated to make them the useful and enjoyable elements they should be.

Art projects, such as sketches, paintings, and sculptures, help students test and develop their artistic talents, while house design and model building keep mechanical drawing students busy. Musical talents are developed in class work and concerts.

Advanced Study Challenges Inquisitive, Eager Minds and Stimulates Enthusiasm

Graphs, labs, minor explosions, and slightly gruesome dissections accent the science and math departments of Highland High.

From algae and rats, to kinetic energy and sulfuric acid, the diverse features of these courses are incorporated to formulate a firm foundation in the sciences for the student.

Biology, chemistry, and physics are all offered in the curricula. Each field provides advanced sections if student enrollment is adequate for the formation of a class.

Lab sessions are considered the requisite for the gaining of a complete understanding of a given phase of study. Subsequently, laboratory periods are designed for use to their fullest capacities. They are scheduled as a routine unit of class activity.

Mathematics, partially thought of as a science, also represents a field of wide interest to many students. This is apparent in the growth of the department. At present, six years of math are made available to the interested student.

These six years are coordinated into increasingly difficult levels. Senior math and calculus are only two of the more advanced phases included in the math department's program.

The increase in interest in math and science and its importance in a technological world have resulted in the simultaneous growth of these departments.

Courses Form Home Ec Skill

Home economics at Highland High is much more than whipping up a batch of biscuits or learning to sew a straight line. Of course, these basics are essential and are taught in beginning courses. In advanced study, however, skills in home decorating and furnishing and clothing styles are concentrated on.

Girls work to develop the keen knowledge of style and nutrition, the active imagination and the self-initiative necessary to make a house a good home.

Borrowing a few tips from their home decorating text, Sally Stockdale and Barbara Brakley work with color scheme and balance in flower arranging, one of the many methods for making a brighter home.

Industrial Skills Taught

Extending manual skills and developing a knowledge of industry are but a few of the goals of the industrial arts department.

Students learn the use of simple hand tools in the crafting of picture frames, tool boxes, and other items.

Power tools are manipulated in constructing benches, tables and other furniture.

Architectural and mechanical drawing are other skills taught in the department. Training in industrial arts provides a workable skill convenient for both job opportunities and hobbies.

World tensions and international problems only tend to increase the need for world knowledge. This information is imparted by the social studies department.

Ranging from studies of peoples and cultures to that of governmental systems and structures, these courses seek to inform the student on topics of world concern.

Since most of the subjects in the social studies curricula are required, they are organized so as to form a composite whole.

The courses are arranged in a manner in which the student gains an insight into his own nation and of foreign ideologies and customs.

Beyond the required studies, there are several elective courses in social studies. Geared to the inquisitive student, World Problems is one such course. This study deals with conflicts and systems relative to international crises.

Totalitarianism is also another elective, being an intense study of governments and systems foreign to our own. The course is a study of Nazism and Communism.

ABOVE LEFT: Jim Brooks studies the plan of a miniature voting machine used by the government classes. LOWER LEFT: Jackie Spencer spends a moment to observe the group of historical documents marking the ground-work of our nation. The framed documents were purchased this year and are on display in the main hall. LOWER RIGHT: Bert Patterson exhibits the fatigue common to many at the end of a hard day.

Depicting the very life of any high school are the students themselves. It is the varied expressions—the contemplated silhouetted monitor, the bored note-taker, the eager sophomore journalism students—that constitute the spirit of Highland High School.

Expressions Depict Mood, Spirit of High School Life

ABOVE: With the anxious glance, typical of a driver's training student, Karen Eldredge prepares to apply driving skills learned in the classroom.
BELOW: Caught up in the keen spirit of competition, volleyball players use teamwork in anticipation of victory.

Expressions — eager, energetic, confused, confident, happy, sad—are detectable in every phase of school life. Just as personalities vary, so do expressions. Yet, some generalizations can be made.

Reflected in the face of sophomores is the ambitious eagerness indicative of youth. An air of self-assurance and self-importance envelops the senior.

In the journalism field dissatisfaction is written on the face of editors after each met deadline, or anxiety for each missed one.

Watching a monitor at his post, one will observe looks ranging from a contemplative countenance to a bored stare.

The strained expression of physical exertion may be seen at a G.A.A. session, an athletic event, or a physical education class.

With a record-breaking summer school attendance, students ranged from the indifferent and lazy to the eager and ambitious.

BELOW LEFT: Any interested boy not currently participating in varsity or junior varsity athletics could participate in Highland's intramural program.

Students, Faculty Are Active

School at Highland High is much more than "readin', writin', and 'rithmetic." Through plays, institutes, and community groups, students and teachers can enjoy a little diversion from daily routine.

Athletics play a big role in student-faculty fun. Having their own team as well, male faculty members help with student intramurals. A high percentage of teachers also attend and help out at home games and enjoy faculty bowling.

"Youthful hysteria" it could be called. The spirit, vitality, challenge, excitement—well, in short, the hysteria of competition is a very vital part of high school life. Every face, from floor to bleacher, reflects rapture and interest, and every word and action is geared toward a common goal.

Athletics cultivate mental, physical, and emotional development—three very important phases in a teenager's quest for adulthood. Keen perception and on-the-spot decisions are a must for a topnotch athlete. Thoughts without actions, though, never win a ball game, track meet, or wrestling match. Stamina and quick response in a healthy, well-disciplined body is the key to success.

With fan and player interest so high, emotions flare. What the heart feels and mind thinks, the face tells. An angry scowl at a bad call; pensive, tongue between lips, trying to "sink that shot;" clenched teeth and wincing eyes while fighting to stay on top in grappler competition; a gaping mouth, snatching one last breath before the final surge over the finish line; the sparkle of excitement during the final moments; a fan in tears because it means so very much—each face tells its own story; all of them tell the big story of sports at Highland High.

Athletics

Expression tells the pulsating story of athletics and the people involved.

Trojans Handicapped by Injuries, Lack of Experience

A lack of experience and size proved to be Trojan Coach Ken Syputl's biggest problem throughout Highland's 1964 football season.

Aided by cool summer weather, Trojan practices commenced and discovered eighty-three enthusiastic competitors were willing to accept the challenge. Again, as in recent years, Syputl lacked size and depth in the interior line. Determination played a major role in this year's campaign but fate seemed to turn against the men of Troy. Drills were designed to assist the small Trojans but it was soon realized that nothing could compensate for their lack of size, and need for experience. Although early predictions confronting the pigskinners were definitely negative, spirit and desire remained high throughout the season. Pre-season practices were laden with criticisms given by Syputl and his remaining staff in order to ready the Trojans for upcoming competition.

"Injury" seemed to be the key word in this year's gridiron campaign. From the first few practices to the last minutes of competitive play, the Highlanders were continuously confronted with numerous hindrances.

Highland's leading ground gainer, senior halfback Chuck Wagner, plunges ahead for a touchdown while opponents pursue close behind.

Co-Captains Wagner and Gaston Injured,

A 7-6 victory over a much bigger Crown Point eleven opened the '64 season in Highland's annual Football-O-Rama. The taste of victory was short when stronger Emerson and Dyer teams defeated the Trojans by 18-14 and 39-0 scores, respectively. Not to be totally discouraged, Highland bounced back to drop Gary Edison by a 13-7 margin. Hammond Clark proved to be a stronger outfit in a 21-6 victory.

Merrillville, Crown Point, and Chesterton downed Highland by scores of 41-6, 35-26, and 19-7, respectively. Highland then defeated Lowell by a 28-26 margin, and ended the season by accepting a 27-6 setback from Grif-fith.

Denny Carlile, lanky senior quarterback, sadly watches our defeat.

Senior defense back Daryl Downing races up to stop Chesterton ball carrier during Trojan Homecoming as backs Chuck Wagner (27) and Ron Szakatis (38) anxiously watch.

Gregg Withrow (69), sophomore defensive tackle, and senior back Daryl Downing hurriedly receive important instructions from Backfield Coach Donn Kaupke as Head Coach Ken Sypult approaches to give his last minute opinion and advice of the situation on the field.

Senior Daryl Downing, voted Highland's most valuable player, is being tackled from behind as he tries to gain needed yardage.

Assistant Coach Donn Kaupke and Manager Tom Wargo assist junior linebacker Jerry Gran to the sidelines because of recurring knee trouble. Jerry was another of the many injured Trojans throughout the 1964 season although he continued to play in the games.

Senior end Bob Rench takes a flying dive to recover a loose ball as he is closely pursued by a defending Chesterton player.

Trojan Harriers Tackle Tough Schedule

Under the direction and leadership of Coach Merlin Clinkenbeard, the Trojan harriers boasted a 27-26 season when facing the toughest schedule in Highland's history. A 4-7 record ranked Highland fourth in a strong Calumet Conference. The Highland harriers finished in the number ten spot in sectional competition.

Greg Roderick, three year captain, was again the key to the Trojan attack. As in previous years, Greg again bettered his self-made school record to a time of 9:36 for the two-mile run. Greg qualified for an individual placing of third in the Calumet Conference, but largely due to illness, fell to ninth place in the stiffer sectional competition. Robin Blixt, Gary Studer, Chuck Phillips, and Chuck Whitaker were also valuable assets to the Trojan cross country squad during the 1964 season.

Flawless Record Achieved By Junior Varsity Squad

Under the guidance of coach Merlin Clinkenbeard, the Highland Junior Varsity became the first unmarred team in Trojan history. Setting their goals high, the young Trojans finished the season with a 19-0 record.

Highland's JV downed Hammond Tech (30-22) to start the season. Squeaking by Hammond Gavit with a 39-38 score left their record yet to be marred. Awakened by a narrow victory over Gavit, the young Trojans proceeded to defeat Munster (54-39), Gary Wirt (43-38), Calumet (55-39), Rennelear (55-45), and Chicago Farragut (45-33) to leave them with a perfect 8-0 mark.

With good team balance, the junior varsity began the new year with defeats over Gary Edison (51-35), and Whiting (48-43). Making up an earlier scheduled contest, the JV continued their winning streak by defeating Merrillville (46-38). Archival Griffith (46-42), Portage (55-38), Chesterton (58-46), Morton (46-41), and Lowell (52-27), were next to fall to the mighty Trojans.

Victories over Crown Point (45-28), East Gary (41-39), Dyer (52-36), and T.F. North (68-39), brought the 1964-65 season to an unprecedented close of 19-0 for the JV squad.

Straining to gain control of a deflected shot, members of both teams battle for possession of the ball. Jerry Greason, Terry Horvat, and Bill Boyd (light uniforms) join in the effort of the junior varsity for another of their spectacular wins.

Finishing the '65 season with a 91-61 victory over neighboring T. F. North, the Highland Trojans emerged with a brilliant 18-2 mark. Tagged by varsity mentor Randy Sheets as "best ever in Highland history," the Trojans displayed superior talent throughout the 1964-1965 season.

Entering the annual East Chicago Washington Invitational Tournament, rated as the state's best, Highland suffered a heart-breaking 65-60 defeat to Indiana's third-ranked host. The following night, Highland bounced back to easily hand Terre Haute Garfield a 69-57 loss.

Highlight of the season was the spectacular 47 point performance of three-year starter Denny Clark during a heated duel against Dyer Central. By setting a new school record and 1965 regional mark, Clark clinched the Calumet Conference title for Highland.

During the halftime of the junior varsity game, varsity players Rex Burton and Frank Katona, sporting their new blue blazers, head for the locker room to prepare for the big game. The varsity blazers were purchased as a Lettermen's project to distinguish the Trojan players off the floor. The jackets are to be passed on to the new squad each year.

Trojans Rank Third in Invitational Tournament

Struggling clear of opposing players, Trojan center, Harry Withrow, takes aim for vital points in Highland's battle against the E. C. Washington Senators. The Trojans suffered a five-point loss to the tourney host.

A strong quintet and good team backing earned Highland an invitation to the famed East Chicago Invitational Holiday Tournament. Other teams entered were sponsor East Chicago Washington, Laporte, and Terre Haute Garfield High Schools.

Highland battled third-ranked Washington only to lose a 65-60 heart breaker. The following night Highland rallied to defeat Garfield (69-57), while Washington downed LaPorte.

Gathering around Coach Randy Sheets for hurried instructions, the Trojan five get ready for another pressured round with the Hammond Tech Tigers.

Delivering the ball to forward Denny Clark, John Gaston, forward, maneuvers through the Dyer onslaught to help the Trojans to a 58-47 victory during their first sectional game.

Trojans Lose to Tech in Sectional Play

Highland entered the Hammond Sectional as a co-favorite. Highland emerged with only the sportsmanship trophy.

Facing a tall Dyer Central quintet in their first contest, the Trojans advanced with a 58-47 score. In their next outing, Highland was downed by Hammond Tech, who was defeated by Hammond High in the championship game.

For the second time in six years, Highland's team, booster block, cheerleaders, and fans received the annual sportsmanship award.

Admiring Highland High's second sectional Sportsmanship trophy, Denny Clark, forward and Sectional All-star player; Cheryl Klein, Booster Club president; Linda Colins, captain of the Varsity cheering squad; Mr. Randy Sheets, Varsity coach; and Mr. Robert Day, Athletic Director, smile with approval at the prestige and honor the award brings.

Chuck Phillips Top Grappler with 16—3 Season; Trojan Matmen Achieve Various Sectional Placements

With a constantly improving schedule, the young Highland grapplers fought their way to a successful 9—2—1 season. Under the able leadership of Coach Michael Keppler, many of the team's conference and sectional contenders will return to boost what is expected to be another excellent year.

Captain Chuck Phillips proved to be the Trojan's most outstanding grappler as he posted a 16—3 season record and earned a sectional championship. Chuck wrestled at both the 138 lb. and 145 lb. weight classes. At the 103 lb. weight class, sophomore Tom Falk battled his way to capture a second place sectional honor. Gary Manno was awarded a third place while Dan Arrington and Gregg Withrow earned fourth place honors.

Highland's JV showed definite signs of possibility as they continually pressured varsity matmen for their respective positions. Competition and spirit will remain high as Trojan grapplers near next season.

One of the top varsity wrestlers, Bernie Alexander, moves quickly to loosen his opponent's hold during the beginning minutes of the match.

With a definite lack of needed facilities, Coach Donn Kaupke will guide the Trojans of Highland into the 1965 track season. Rebounding from a poor 3—7 mark last year, Highland hopes to steadily obtain recognition in conference and regional competition.

Coach Kaupke, with the assistance of football mentor Ken Sypult, will hope to build the 1965 squad around such veterans as Greg Roderick and Chuck Wagner. Roderick has earned school records with times of 2:08 in the half mile and 4:37 in the mile run. Bruce Larrabee, senior hurdler, Rick Gaston and Don Johnson, junior sprinters, will be additional prospects for the upcoming season.

In the summer of 1965, preparations will begin for the building of Highland's first track. With the proposed excellence of the track, future Trojan teams should steadily improve.

ABOVE: Leaping high for a hurdle, Bruce Larrabee, senior, practices for a coming track meet. Bruce and several other returning lettermen provide a strong base on which to build a successful team. Stance and concentrated power are needed for a good distance shot.

Star runner Greg Roderick, senior, pulls ahead of his opponent for another victory. Experience and ability have made him prominent.

Returning Baseball Lettermen Expected To Be Determining Factors in Improving Highland's 6—7 1964 Season Record

Baseball for the 1965 season at Highland High is expected to reach an all-time best. Competition for respective positions is excellent while new coach Paul Schuyler finds experience only a minor problem. Seven last-year starters greeted their new coach in March.

Senior Keith Kasbaum will be hurling in most of Highland's major contests. Other returning senior lettermen included Al Jones, Daryl Downing, Ed Antone, Wally Novak, and Richard Kalmas. Junior lettermen include Gary Manno and Ron Szakaitas.

Highland emerged with a 6—7 overall record in the 1964 season. Gary Edison, Dyer Central, Chesterton, Portage, Lowell, and Calumet were all victims of the 1964 squad. Hammond High, Griffith, East Gary, Crown Point, Merrillville, and Gary Wirt were teams that beat the Trojans. Highland ranked third in Calumet Conference area competition.

Another session of baseball practice finds Daryl Downing, senior, and Gary Manno, junior, on opposing teams. For practices the team divides and attempts to conquer their counterpart. This type of practice makes interscholastic competition keener while building skill and proficiency. Spirited competition among team members creates a stronger team effort.

Highland Golfers Defend 1964 Conference Honors

Under the leadership of a new golf coach Harry Mathers, Highland will prepare to defend its co-championship title for the 1964 season. Griffith and Merrillville united with Highland for the Calumet Conference honors.

Seniors Larry Landis and John Morelli are expected to lead Mike Fox, Jim McDonald and Darrell Howard to another winning season. Landis and Morelli often earned medalist honors last year. Landis also gained distinction by being elected "All-Conference" and by setting a new school record of 35 strokes for a nine-hole match.

Highland High's lead team finished fourth in a thirty-one team sectional last year.

As Highland's leading four in golf competition, Mike Fox, John Morelli, Darrell Howard, and Larry Landis check the season's game schedule and plan strategy for defending their 1964 Conference honors with Coach Harry Mathers. The 1963 season was Mr. Mathers first year as golf coach at Highland High.

Lettermen Encourage High Standards of Scholarship As Well As Sportsmanship

As in previous years at Highland High School, the Lettermen's Club has stressed the importance of sportsmanship, scholarship, clean living, and clean speech. Composed of varsity letter winners, this club has strived for school and community improvement.

In past years, the club has donated such things as a movie projector for filming football games, Calumet Conference pennants, and blue blazers for each coach on Highland's staff.

Under the guidance of coaches Ken Sypult, football and assistant track, and Donn Kaupke, track and assistant football, the Lettermen's Club has run the concession stand at all Highland home basketball games. This has always been the club's major money making project.

Seniors Chuck Wagner, president; Greg Roderick, vice president; Bruce Larrabee, Secretary-treasurer; and Daryl Downing, sergeant-at-arms, were the officers.

While Letterman Mike Forkasdi operates the Pepsi machine, Sam Young and Dan Arrington fill popcorn bags. Tony Pavlica also assists in the concession stand by refilling the popcorn machine. The Lettermen operate the concession at all home games.

Seeking to serve and to satisfy students in all phases of school life, extra-curricular activities are effective outlets for teenage energies and endeavors. Diversification in organizations accents individuality and the natural diversification of personality.

Whether a student wants to pursue an interest, prepare for a career, perform a service, promote recognition or simply participate in an activity, satisfaction and stimulation can be achieved through active membership in a suitable organization.

Those who crave opportunities for creativity find it through participation in interest clubs. Those who are so inclined may express themselves in dramatic endeavors. Career clubs give distinct outlines and shapes to a once hazy future. Still other organizations exist for the sole purpose of serving the school, the students, and the community. Honorary student societies recognize superior achievement.

Associations are worthless without the ambitious, active members who form the heart of the organization. Membership is one thing; active participation is another. Participation reaps countless intangible rewards and brings the expression of deep satisfaction to a young face. That faint smile tells the story of active participation and young contentment at Highland High.

Organizations

Expression tells the satisfying story of active participation in school clubs.

Watching the action on the field, junior Judy Adamchik urges the Trojan team to victory.

Throughout the year the loud, masculine voices of the boys that comprised the "H" in the Booster Block accented cheers at football and basketball games. These boys, along with other students, helped make the Highland High School Booster Club bigger than ever.

Money from dues and the sale of mums was used to buy the cheerleaders sweaters and chevrons. The proceeds were also used to purchase material for new capas for members to wear during the games.

Blue and gold mittens and a card section were new innovations of the block. Another first was a sophomore mascot, John Felicia, who practiced with both the Varsity and J.V. cheerleaders.

Members and cheerleaders met during activity period to learn new cheers, to perfect old ones, and to learn to use the cards in order to prepare to ignite school spirit.

Athletic Abilities Are Displayed by G.A.A. Members; Funds for Annual Banquet Are Secured by Candy Sale

Athletically-inclined girls are given an opportunity to satisfy their interests through the Girls' Athletic Association. Dedicated to the ideals of promoting good sportsmanship and physical fitness, G.A.A. members participate in a variety of weekly organized activities. Softball, dancing, bowling, basketball, tumbling and volleyball are among the sports keeping the girls active during the year.

As an incentive for perfect attendance and participation in these and other outside activities, awards are made to girls achieving a certain number of points. Sweaters, letters and plaques may be earned by ambitious active members.

The annual candy sale held in the fall contributed funds to the treasury in anticipation of the banquet. This traditional mother and daughter affair was held on May 6 at San Remo's Restaurant. Rounding out the year's social activities was a Play Day held in the spring, as in previous years.

Joyce Christenson attempts to raise her score while participating in G.A.A.'s six weeks bowling rallies. Every six weeks' interval marks a different activity for G.A.A. members who compete in team efforts in a variety of organized games and sports.

Lettergirls Perform Precision Maneuvers

Intent on keeping in step with the other Lettergirls, sophomore Linda Schaller and juniors Linda Andreas and Judy Rost execute precision steps.

A whistle sounds and practice begins. Synchronized marching and rhythmic routines are displayed by Highland High School Lettergirls. Weekly practices bring the chance to perform in the gymnasium during the halftime of Friday night athletic events.

Sponsoring such projects as an annual twirling show and soc-hops, the girls also participate in city parades and holiday festivities. The group has won acclaim as second place winners in the marching division at the East Chicago Christmas Parade last year.

Lettergirl Doreen Tumidalsky displays school spirit at its peak.

Mr. Dean Speicher Provides Guidance; News Bureau, CENTAUR Create Interests

Dynamic at work ... In relations with students ... in friendly conversation ... at social functions ... Mr. Dean Speicher offers an image of efficiency and unmistakable affability.

Truly the "man behind the scenes," dynamic Mr. Dean Speicher exemplifies determination to all of his students. The responsibility of being publications' department director is a task requiring an abundance of patience and personality. First he must educate his beginning journalism students in preparation for assumption of editorships. He must be there to encourage and to advise when necessary.

These duties will be assumed by another director next year when Mr. Speicher takes a leave of absence.

Disseminating school news to the public is the function of Highland High's News Bureau. Stories and pictures are sent weekly to the Hammond Times, Calumet Press, Highland Journal and Suburban Herald.

Stimulating interest in literary composition while encouraging creative talents in students, the CENTAUR was published at Christmas-time. Highland High School's literary human interest magazine was composed of student contributions. As an incentive, the CENTAUR sponsored a writing contest. First, second, third place mentions were awarded to selected entries in each of four categories: humor, short story, poetry, and essay. Highland's first spring CENTAUR was printed in 1965.

Responsibility runs high but looking over the final publication is the reward.

Getting a four-page paper out every week is quite a job, as most of the editors of the TROJANAL, Highland High's newspaper, will readily admit.

Each year two students are chosen for most positions, each serving for one semester. This not only distributes the volumes of work, but also gives many more young journalists a chance to experience the responsibilities and demands of an editorship.

Voluntarily increasing their work, the TROJANAL staff prints special six and twelve-page editions, supported by advertising. The work is hard, but topnotch ratings make it all worthwhile.

Forming the TROJANAL business staff, Cheryl Klein, typing editor; Francine Horvat, business manager; Cheryl Garbett, circulation editor; Cheryl DeLong, advertising manager; and Kathy Gorsich, exchange manager, handle all of the newspaper's clerical and money matters.

SHIELD Staff Strives to Produce Quality Publication

Each year SHIELD editors are faced with the monumental task of capturing the spirit of school life. Appealing copy, original layouts, effective artwork, and imaginative photographs must combine with successful business, sales, and advertising management to create the ideal yearbook.

To combine all of these elements into a consistently award-winning publication is a tremendous challenge. Each editor must accept his individual responsibility. Only through the concerted efforts of dedicated, devoted, and diligent staff members can the dream of an All-American yearbook be realized.

Yet the challenge was met by the 1964 SHIELD staff; the dream was fulfilled through the announcement of an All-American rating by the National Press Association and an A+ rating by the National Scholastic Yearbook Association.

Margie Haburay, business manager, checks the recent SHIELD receipts while Karen Reed, sales manager, and Sue Bennett, typing editor, pause in their duties to notice the balance to date. Checking over the lists of prospective merchants is Advertising Manager Sandi Beilke.

1965 SHIELD major editors devote hours of time and effort to the production of the yearbook. Charlene Browning, photography editor, and Dave Spanier, head photographer, discuss photo measurements. Judy Blaskovich, editor-in-chief, who bears the final responsibility for everything printed in the yearbook, discusses effective layouts with Karen Fleener and Judy Ross, co-layout and art editors. Sue Carlson, copy editor, and Kathy Roche, associate copy editor, refer to the files for ideas on lively, original copy to carry the theme throughout the yearbook.

Copy section editors, Janet Strange, advertising; Carole Dorsch, opening; Mary Ablett, organizations; John Gaston, athletics; and Nancy Kula, personalities; help ease the work of the major editors. They also co-operate with Barb Brakley, index editor of the SHIELD.

Quill and Scroll Hosts Lettermen Concert; Give Annual Spring Publications Banquet

Affiliated with the national honorary for high school journalists, the Allen J. Warren Chapter of Quill & Scroll continued to increase its membership.

All members were officially initiated during a candlelight ceremony. They all received a membership card, pin, and monthly publication of the NATIONAL QUILL & SCROLL.

New junior members of the Quill & Scroll, accepted in January, were guests of the Griffith Chapter. They were initiated in a dual ceremony with Griffith's new members.

The outstanding activity of the Quill & Scroll was the engagement of the Lettermen, a nationally known singing group. They presented a concert on Monday, October 5, 1964.

N.H.S. Handles Plans for Annual Scholarship Banquet; Buys Cowls for Honor Students at Commencement

Making arrangements for the spring scholarship banquet, Myra Middleton and Diane Dickinson, co-chairmen, discuss ideas with Mr. Thom Brendel, N.H.S. sponsor. Working to make the annual dinner a memorable occasion, National Honor Society brought new ideas and life to the project in the line of food and entertainment.

Exemplifying its role as a service club, as well as an honorary, National Honor Society geared its 1964-65 projects toward helping their school and community. The biggest of these was taking over the entire planning of the annual scholarship banquet, donating both time and money to make it a memorable occasion. The club also contributed money to pay for cowls worn by "A" and "B" students at commencement.

Other N.H.S. activities included a bake sale, soc hop, candlelight initiation and the club's annual dinner-dance in the spring.

Key Club is one of Highland High's more active service organizations.

One of the first money-making projects was the sale of holly, wreaths and various other Christmas decorations.

They were also responsible for the erection and decoration of a Christmas tree in the library. Key Club sponsored a drive for the distribution of food to needy families in the area.

The members of the Key Club usher for all convocations and many other school functions.

Key Club is affiliated with the Kiwanis Club and its services reflect the purposes of this parent organization.

Forming a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, Y-Teens works toward friendship, understanding, and a knowledge of God in many countries around the globe.

Administering this goal at a local level, Y-Teens of Highland High School work to bring happiness and peace to the less fortunate members of their community and surrounding area.

Following the tradition of past years, members of the organization brought Yuletide joy to children at the Bethany Home of Hammond with a Christmas party, games, and presents. They also sent articles to under-privileged children.

The chore of raising money for these service projects was met by Y-Teens in a variety of ways. The main fund-raising event of the year was the annual potato chip sale in March. A post-game soc-hop also helped provide the needed funds for their various community projects.

Council Puts Out Handbook

Serving as the official voice of the student body, the Student Council seeks to represent the classes in their best interests.

Via class representatives the council bends an ear to the complaints as well as suggestions of students. Members work to improve conditions if such action is warranted.

Major undertakings of this year's Council were the completion of a student handbook, the organization of the Lake County Association of Student Councils, and the publication of school calendars.

Court Justices Decide on Lesser Student Offenses

Forming the judicial branch of student government at Highland High, the Student Court takes on the responsibility of punishing lesser offenders of school rules and code.

Four class judges and the senior Chief Justice reside at court meetings, where they make decisions and affix punishments.

Other court officials include the clerk, bailiff, recorder, and deputies. While the main job of the clerk and recorder is to keep court records complete and up-to-date, the bailiff calls the cases before the court. Court deputies are responsible for administering punishments issued by the court.

These various court officials are chosen by their classmates to hold their positions. They are evaluated for qualities of leadership, dependability, character, and command of respect among their peers. Once elected, these students must uphold student body and administration rules.

Monitor Larry Horvat asserts his authority by giving Beverly Hawk a court notice. Roaming the halls without a properly signed pass is contrary to school regulations, and this offense is punishable by the Student Court.

Science Club Members Go Down State

As a member chapter of the Junior Academy of Science, the Highland High School science club was active in bringing interest and knowledge to high school students.

Fulfilling its duties to the Academy, the club sent representatives to the state convention in Indianapolis in October.

Catering to the variety of interests in the club, guest speakers, representing various fields of science, were invited to meetings.

Displaying their keen interest in science, Veryl Hodges and James Sweeney satisfy their curiosity in the chemistry lab.

M.C.C. Members Visit State Mental Institution in Fall

Medical Careers Club is a relatively new organization at Highland High School, but in its short existence it has done much to cultivate the interest of students in considering a medical career.

In November the organization took a field trip to Beatty Memorial Hospital in order to observe the work involved in being affiliated with this branch of medicine.

Boasting one of the larger memberships among the school's clubs, the MCC accomplishes much in the way of service. They have donated Easter baskets to the children in a local orphanage and have done similar good will services in the immediate community.

The members also plan activities for their own recreation. Excursions to nearby beaches and a dinner for the members are only a couple of the club's events.

Leaving the high school for a field trip to Beatty Memorial Hospital are Chris Budzius and Sandi Bielke. The Medical Careers Club participated in the tour which the hospital conducts twice a year.

F.T.A. Reaches New Membership High in 1964-65 Year

Setting a new record in membership during the 1964-65 year, Future Teachers of America reflected a rise in student interest in the field of educating.

Starting the year with a candlelight initiation, F.T.A. members were host to Mrs. Marian York, a long devoted teacher of Highland after whom their chapter was named.

At the F.T.A. Round-up members met other future educators of the area. Guest speakers also brought them closer to teaching. Two members were further helped with $100 scholarships given by the club.

Highland Sends Delegates to F.B.L.A. State Convention

Hoping to instill competence and ambition in young business enthusiasts, the Future Business Leaders of America sent delegates to the state convention at Ball State Teachers College in the spring. A business career conference was also sponsored in February.

F.B.L.A. further stimulated interest with a scholarship which was awarded to an outstanding member. Most of the funds for this project were earned at the club's annual card party and salad bar in November.

Functioning as a service club as well as a career club, F.B.L.A. sponsored a toy drive which brought Christmas fun to many blind children in the state.

Interested Girls Establish Future Homemakers Group

Nancy Suplick, treasurer; Donna Humpher, secretary; Betty Suroviak; vice president; and Barbara Brakley, president, work diligently in planning the Future Homemakers of America's bake sale and mother's tea.

Newly organized during the fall of 1964, the Future Homemakers of America charter members spent much of their time planning for future years and establishing the club in school.

As the club's first major activity, officers for the 1965-66 school year were installed at a mother-daughter tea in the spring. Displaying their home economic skills, F.H.A. members also sponsored a bake sale. Proceeds of the project were used in planning future activities.

Chess Club, Sign Painters Geared to Student Skills

Reactivation of the Chess Club drew many interested students into the organization this year. Chess tournaments challenged the strategies and techniques of the "King's Men." A strong competitive spirit was created through participation in inter-scholastic meets. Practice sessions in anticipation of these meets are held on Thursday evenings.

Another small but significant organization is the Sign Painter's Club. For a small fee covering overhead, members of the club freely contribute their time and talent for the benefit of the school. Voluntary decoration for the open house and the Christmas season and promotion of school activities is done through the efforts of the Sign Painter's Club. Their art work gives a new look to Highland High on many occasions.

Language Clubs Acquaint Members with Other Cultures

Parlez-vous francais? Me neither! But the reason is certainly not a lack of opportunity. Highland High offers French as well as German, Latin, and Spanish.

Growing at a rapid pace, the Language clubs appeal to an increasing number of students yearly.

Emphasis on customs, geography, and culture of the country whose language is being studied, tends to create enthusiasm in learning the language fluently.

Watching slides of Italy, breaking a pinata Spanish style, and reading French publications are only a few of the activities which stimulate interest in the various language clubs.

Discussion Group Stimulates Student Literary Interest

Mr. Robert Kellam, English teacher, skims for some significant points to bring out while leading one of the group's discussions.

Showing the rapture and enjoyment that can come from a good book and lively discussion, Earl Luetzeltschwab exchanges ideas with a fellow student. Through such informal talks, the group searches for the "meat" and meaning of the literature they study.

Newly organized this year, the Literary Discussion Club was started with the combined efforts of both English teachers and students to stimulate good reading and literary interest.

Meeting at least twice a month, the group discussed a variety of works ranging from Oliver Twist, and A Separate Peace to Anna Karenina and Catcher in the Rye. In co-ordination with their reading some members also attended "Oliver," a musical in Chicago.

Debate, Speech Combine To Form Forensic Group

Top debaters, Marilyn Dunn, president, and Pam Benda, study and arrange their card box for a quick find during the decisive moments of crucial competition with other high school teams.

Combining both speech and debate into one group for the first time, Forensics joined the ranks of Highland's new clubs. Students interested in both discussion and competition joined together around their common interest of public speaking.

Following through two traditions established last year by Highland's first debate team, the group sponsored a Miss Soc Hop contest and dance in the spring and the melodrama, "Fireman, Save My Child!" as a first semester project. Proceeds from club activities were used to sponsor the debate team's trips to area and state competition.

Debating the national topic, "Should nuclear weapons be placed under the control of an international organization," the team participated in more than a dozen invitational debates and stiff competition at a Muncie, Indiana gathering, where they won second place honors.

Excitement of opening night illuminates an established "pro" as well as the shy novice. Preparation for the opening of the curtain unites all members of the Drama Club in a strong effort for success.

1965 proved to be a big year for the Drama Club. Their first activity was an annual dance, this year's being "The Shiek Club."

Following this was the presentation of three one-act plays—"Aria da Capo," "Trifles," and "The Marriage Proposal."

Next on the agenda was Drama Club's affiliation with the National Thespian Society, a national honorary organization. Ten of the members were accepted into the Society.

Most important of Drama Club's enterprises was the presentation of "Mrs. McThing." Acting, designing sets, and working in many other capacities, students are introduced to the thrill of the theater.

Mr. E. Colin Black, Drama Club sponsor, discusses the formation of a Highland chapter of the National Thespians Society with Diane Dickinson, club president. Ten charter members were nominated to this national group for high school dramatists.

Drama Club Presents Three One-Act Plays in Fall; Ten Outstanding Members Nominated as Thespians

Outstanding Drama Club members, Pat Lowery, Pat Koselke, Greg Ladd, Gene Gambril, Diane Dickinson, Jack Leach, Carole Dorach, Vicki Rowe, Alexa Smith, and Georgette Paulsin, were chosen as charter members of Highland High's first National Thespian Society for their participation in Drama Club activities.

Vicki Rowe contemplates her next move while carefully guarding her precious "jewels" in "Aria da Capo."

As proof of the growing interest in the vocal music department, another extra-curricular girls' group was organized this year. The newly formed Trojan-Notes consists of nine girls selected from the Choir and the Girls' Glee Club.

The Highlanders, also a girls' group, performed at the GAA initiation, while the Madrigals, an even more select mixed group, entertained at various luncheons throughout the year.

In the spring, our vocal department participated in a choral concert with five area schools. Entering contests at Lew Wallace High School in February gave the pleasure of singing a competitive quality.

Highland High's Band Presents Halftime Entertainment Pep Band Accompanies Cheerleaders and Booster Club

Following in the tradition of previous years, the Highland Senior High School Band has performed at all home football games. With the help of the majorettes and Lettergirls, the band entertains both the visiting and home town spectators. Marching in area parades is another source of valuable experience.

Accompanying the cheering block at home games, volunteer band members help inject spirit with their pep band routines.

The Christmas season brought the annual Band Concert, ranging from the classics to popular arrangements. The Fall and Spring Concerts bring in extra money as well as providing musical entertainment for listeners.

Students also have a chance to show their individual talents in solo or ensemble participation in area and state contests, where many are honored.

The pep band, under the direction of Mr. Edwin Kibiger, sets the pace for a spirited all-school convo. Besides several convo appearances, Mr. Kibiger and his musicians played for most of Highland's home games. To the delight of those in attendance, the pep band accompanies the booster block in several cheers, as well as the National Anthem.

and Performs Concerts; in Promoting School Spirit

Practicing one of their several peppy routines are Highland High's two majorettes, Paula Nevers and Rebecca Scott. Their performance is always one of the high points of the halftime show presented by the band.

Smiling drum major, Veryl Hodges, can be seen vigorously leading the band in the halftime entertainment at the football games. This senior has been performing for the past two years.

Eyes sparkling with spirit or glistening with disappointment; mouths gaping with awe or perhaps curved into delighted smiles—all sorts of facial contortions offer hints to the personalities lurking within.

Highland High's students and faculty are no exception. Outward characteristics suggest latent personalities. The school society consists of as many differences in personality as there are different persons. Expressive faces as well as stoic countenances make for a wide variety.

The human dynamo, the introvert, the "brain," the perfectionist—all can be found in this diverse and marvelous cross-section of humanity. Soc hops, dances, basketball games, and banquets all bring out the complementary phases of the individual personal characteristics.

Each class has its distinctive personalities. Every unique characteristic and quality can be traced here. There are leaders and followers, actors and an audience.

Such diversity breathes life and vitality into a school. There are 900 different faces and just as many people behind them. Striking a certain attitude or pose, they tell the story of individual personalities at Highland High.

Personalities

ExpressView tells the sparkling, many-sided story of personalities at H.H.S.

Responsible for the harmony in the public school system is Mr. Lon P. Monbeck, Superintendent of Highland Public Schools.

Mr. Robert Day, Assistant Principal, reflects upon his daily duties with satisfaction as each new day brings new challenges.

Administrators Coordinate;

Frustrations, misunderstandings, and problems all ultimately reach the offices of Highland High's administrators. These qualified personnel, headed by Superintendent Lon P. Monbeck and his assistant, Mr. Clyde M. Sumner, are responsible for keeping Highland High in smooth running order.

Mr. Allen J. Warren, principal, aided by assistant, Mr. Robert Day, is responsible for the co-ordinating of Highland High's scholastic and extra-curricular activities as well as its relationship with the community. The School Board, including Mr. Harold Roscoe, Dr. John Winters, and

Mr. C. H. Whitaker, aid him in this latter capacity.

Guidance counselors, Mr. James Garretson and Mr. John Fruth, and Mrs. Annabelle Shone, guidance director, have made themselves familiar with the student body. They maintain close contact with students who require any kind of guidance they can handle. Mr. Kienzynski, Director of Attendance, works closely with these three.

With the assistance of all these administrative personnel, the students of Highland High are offered every opportunity to succeed and to build a good reputation for their school.

Keeping track of all school and community activities is essential in the life of Highland High School Principal, Allen J. Warren.

School Counselors and Personnel Aid Many Students

Mr. Clyde Sumner, Assistant to the Superintendent, and Mr. Paul Kienzynski, Director of Attendance, work for all Highland public schools.

School Board members, Mr. Harold Roscoe, Dr. John C. Winters, and Mr. C. H. Whitaker, look over the agenda for the next meeting.

Co-ordinating students' scheduling with their plans for the future is handled by guidance counselors, Mr. James Gurrettson and Mr. John Fruth, and by Guidance Director, Mrs. Annabelle Shone.

ABOVE: Keeping accurate health records for Highland High School students is part of Mrs. Ida Deceuster's work as school nurse. RIGHT: Mrs. Eleanor Tirpak, Mrs. Martha Brown, and Mrs. Bertha Humphrey handle correspondence and bookkeeping for Mr. Monbeck.

Secretaries and Nurse Exhibit Patience and Efficiency in Executing Daily Duties

Familiar faces to the student body are those of the office secretaries.

Aiding Superintendent Lon P. Monbeck are Mrs. Eleanor Tirpak, Mrs. Martha Brown, and Mrs. Bertha Humphrey. Mrs. Brown serves as a bookkeeper while the others act as Mr. Monbeck's secretaries.

Mrs. Myrtle Watson and Mrs. Laurene Coles work in the main office helping out both student and faculty.

Mrs. Grace Reichers serves as secretary of the guidance department while Mrs. Ida Deceuster acts as the school nurse.

Mrs. Laurene Coles, Mrs. Myrtle Watson, and Mrs. Grace Reichers seem to be enjoying the tedious task of keeping records straight.

Cooks, Custodians Help to Keep School Running Smoothly

With school pride as high as it is at Highland High, there is an intense interest in the appearance of the school both inside and out. The custodians help keep the building clean, neat, and orderly.

Also on the high school staff, are the kitchen help whose duties range from preparing the food, cooking, serving, and taking care of sales.

Working to make Highland High clean and orderly, the custodians and cooks help contribute to the welfare of the student body.

Stanley Sury, Eadie MacDonald, Mike Murray, and Lambert Eriks stand ready to oversee custodial responsibilities of Highland High. Maintenance of a modern school the size of ours is a big job.

Class of '67

"Are the sophomores with us?" "Yeah man!" And they truly were, in this, their first year at HHS.

New experiences were in store for the class of '67; building a float, making money as a class, and the first year of underclassman rank.

Bewilderment, perplexity, and a general feeling of confusion were typical of the new sophomores at the first. As time passed by these were replaced with greater enthusiasm and new class pride.

Planning the activities and projects for their class for the 1964-65 school year are sophomore officers Larry Peterson, treasurer; Sara Vaughn, vice president; Sue Woodfill, president; and Annette Koselke, secretary. Serving as sponsors for the Class of '67 are Mrs. Barbara Forkas and Mr. Melvyn Anderson.

As their first money-making project of the school year, the junior class sponsored a car wash. An effective combination of water, soap and "elbowgrease" resulted in a successful day for the junior's treasury. The funds were raised in anticipation of the annual junior-senior prom in the spring.

Seniors Experience Final High School Activities; Anticipation Reaches Height

Magical qualities of the Senior Year are captured in the knowledge that there is only one year left.

Mixed emotions greet the student on his admission into the senior ranks. All the memories of past years, friends and key moments, flood back only to ebb away in the tide of anticipation.

Expressions of the Senior himself show a variance throughout the year as extensive as the range of his feelings. In the fall, arrogant pride marks many a novice senior. As the year proceeds, the expression turns to one of gaiety and exhilaration only to be followed with the tears of unsure happiness intertwined with regrets. As graduation snuffs out old friendships and practices, it also opens a door to new opportunities and horizons.

A senior year is bulging with emotions as diversified as the people themselves.

Last games of the season, last school productions and class activities are all the more treasured by the senior heart and mind.

Twenty-two Outstanding Seniors Given Recognition; Top Two in Class Announced

Taking time out to wet their whistles, three senior "Robetrots," Judy Freeman, Margie Haburay, and Cheryl Groves, assemble for last minute instructions. With a waving of pigtails, "Nancy's Nifties" emerged victorious, with Cheryl Klein (12), Cheryl Groves (2), and Sandi Belke (6) scoring for a 20-3 win over the junior opposition. The underclassmen dubbed themselves the "Jolly Junior Jiants."

Engaging in formal as well as unorganized activities, "Senioritis" permeated the Class of '65.

At Christmastime, groups of Seniors caroled then returned to a class dance and party at the school.

"Senior Privilege" was the term applied to the Senior beanies. Arriving in January, the "blue lids" became a mark of distinction.

"Nancy's Nifty Robetrots," a basketball team composed solely of senior girls, tromped the junior girls' team, the "Jolly Junior Jiants," 20-3.

A brainstorm of the Senior class resulted in the first Mr. Basketball Soc-hop. Senior Denny Clark received this title.

LEFT: Surveying the fruits of her lucky catch, senior Jo Ann Lukasik holds the basketball she intercepted during the Mr. Basketball soc hop. The ball, autographed by the Trojan squad, was thrown to the crowd by forward Denny Clark, 1965 Mr. Basketball. RIGHT: Senior "cheerleader," Gregg Ladd, leads sideline boosters in some spirited cheers, while "Nancy's Nifties" battle it out with the junior girls' fighting six.

Ranging from socks and loafers to textured nylons and pumps, the 1964-65 fashion year was one of variety and change. Shoulder purses and suspenders—things that just weren't "in" at all a few years before—were quickly assimilated into the fashion world of Highland High.

Textured Nylons, Senior Beanies Create New Look

"Hey look at us seniors . . ." Senior beanies were the thing in upper-classman fashion as the class of '65 donned their blue caps for a little extra distinction.

Members of Class of '65 Contend for Diverse Titles

Mr. Football, Daryl Downing, triumphed over runners-up Denny Carlisle, Larry Landis, John Gaston, Chuck Wagner, and Jim Messner. All were honored as outstanding members of the Trojan football squad. Created by the Class of 1965, the Mr. Football Soc-Hop and title have become traditional. Only Seniors on the football squad are eligible for nomination.

Various expressions mark the countenances of the court of the Prom King and Queen, John Gaston and Margie Haburay. Denny Clark, Van Gurley, Larry Landis, Bruce Larrabee, and Chuck Wagner were chosen by fellow classmates to vie for the Prom King title. Contending as Prom Queen nominees were Judy Blaskovich, Peggy Brannen, Linda Collins, Diane Dickinson, and Pam Tauber. All juniors with a "C" or above average were eligible for nomination. An initial vote narrowed contention down to fifteen. Then juniors voted for their six favorites, who vied for the title.

Class of '65 Came to Highland As Eighth Graders; High School Activities Provide Four Eventful Years

Starting way, way back in grade school, the Class of '65 gradually grew to become the largest class to ever be graduated from Highland High.

They arrived on the doorstep of the three year old high school one September morning in 1960— young, eager eighth graders ready to start a new adventure.

Not quite as green as most freshmen, the class members entered their first year of actual high school with one year's experience under their belts. Joined by the newcomers from Our Lady of Grace grade school, they all united to form the Class of 1965.

It was a girls' year as the new "Freshies" chose four of the "fairer sex" to lead them their first year. Cheryl Groves, president; Margie Haburay, vice president; Diane Dickinson, secretary; Judy Blaskovich, treasurer, helped organize the class's 1961 homecoming float, "Cool Those Devils."

Busying themselves with earning money and having fun, two necessities for a high school class, freshmen sponsored their first soc-hop and their first class party, which included dancing and a movie at the Town Theater.

Joining clubs, sports, and Student Council and making good showings on the honor roll and at school functions, the freshmen's promise and enthusiasm marked their beginning at Highland High.

Acquiring the name "Sophs", they spent a year even more eventful than the last. Besides the usual soc-hops, car washes, and sophomore sweatshirt sale, they brought new ideas and events to Highland High.

By sophomore invitation, the well-known Dr. Dan Q. Posin lectured on the mysteries of the universe.

Establishing a tradition to be observed by all sophomore classes to follow, the Class of '65 sponsored the first Mr. Football soc-hop. There was also the homecoming float, "Dash-und to Victory."

Anticipation mounted second semester as the time for ordering class rings approached. Class officers Jim Paglis, president; Bruce Larrabee, vice president; Sue Carlson, secretary; and Linda Colins, treasurer, made the final decision on ring style.

"Prom" was the word for the 1963-64 year. A car wash, soc-hop, and bake sale were all planned with "the" event in mind. The traditional junior chili supper was also successfully carried out.

The fall semester brought both fun and tragedy as juniors added humor to the 1963 Homecoming with their "I Tawt I Taw a Victory," and just two months later experienced the shock of President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

Designing, building and planning for that "big event" came to a hectic, but worthwhile end. On Saturday, May 23, 1964, the juniors opened the door of "Evening Ebb Tide" to their senior guests and fellow classmates. The co-chairmen, Diane Dickinson and Gene Gambriel were guided by Bruce Larrabee, president; Jim Paglis, vice president; Peggie Brannen, Secretary; and Margie Haburay, treasurer. An after-prom party at the Scherwood Club, including a magic and comedy act and music by Oscar and the Majestics, marked the end of an eventful junior year.

Highland High School left the Class of '65 with a deep appreciation of learning and close friendship, but despite fond memories they are graduated with their faces turned toward the future. Many new experiences and new ways of life lie ahead.

Ugh! What a match! Theresa Boyd and Sandy Norris have supplied Keith Kasbaum and Jim McDonald with perfect ensembles, or so they say. No matter what the choice is, clothes purchased from the Golden Hanger always create that masculine look.

It looks like Kathy Nelson, Judy Freeman, Denny Carlile, and Denny Heinrichs are having a hard time making up their mind about which type of food they want. The choice is hard at Mr. Kenney's because of all the tempting dishes offered. But you can't go wrong no matter what.

PTA Promotes Improved Understanding, Coordination For the Entire Community

The Highland High School Parent-Teacher's Association was organized to promote better understanding among parents and teachers, as well as students. This better understanding has helped coordinate the activities of, not only the school, but the whole town.

The main project of the association is sponsoring the annual Open House. Parents are invited to tour the school and acquaint themselves with the teachers, classroom facilities and progress of their children. Thus, better understanding is developed between the triangle of parent, student, and teacher.

Our P.T.A. takes pride in its membership as a unit of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. This organization helps with many of the problems which are facing our country's educational system and is composed of twelve million people who belong to P.T.A. groups similar to the one in Highland.

Meeting once a month, the group candidly discusses problems of importance to the school and the entire community. The meetings supply parents and teachers with a knowledge of many enlightening topics supplied by guest speakers. P.T.A. is the important link in community coordination.

PTA's problems, achievements, and satisfactions arise from students such as these. Ed Cluki, Marilyn Dunn, Cheryl Garbett, Ray Matias, Rex Burton, and Nancy Irish express the wide range of opinions and ideas of the students which find voice in PTA work and goals. PTA tries to reflect the student, parent, and teacher interests at Highland High.

Rich Kalmas expresses determination.

Emotions are very common, universal elements, but put them inside a teenager and somehow they are very strangely different. They take on a new luster, a new interpretation, a new meaning that only youth can give to the commonplace.

Perhaps this difference in feelings comes from a difference in cause. Disappointment, for instance, is kindred to any age, but in a high school world it usually stems from a sectional loss, or sitting at home the night of the big dance. It's disappointment, plain and simple, but not just any disappointment—it is a teenager's and that makes it very unique somehow.

Perhaps too, the difference stems from inexperience. Maybe the first time something is felt is the best time, and high school surely is a maze of "firsts." Then too, the answer may lie in the tendency of youthful feelings to find their way out into the open, popping into dazzled eyes or an unabashed grin. Perhaps the answer does lie in this facial flexibility of youth, or if not an answer, at least an interesting story.

One expression tells of the big game, another of that certain some one, and still another says, "I don't understand," as plain as if it were spoken. To a perceptive eye facial expressions do speak, and if one "listens" closely, they tell people's stories. They do at Highland High.

Through consultation and cooperation with Mr. Ed Hackelman, area sales representative, 850 SHIELDS came rolling off the presses of American Yearbook Company of Hannibal, Missouri, into the hands of eager students and faculty, interested parents, and school yearbook staffs all over the country.

Type style and size were chosen to establish pleasing contrast and readability. The body copy of the book is set in 12 point Spartan, medium (A point is 1/72 of an inch). The 24 point headlines and 8 point captions are all Times Roman italics.

Showing both grain and color contrast, the cover of the 1965 SHIELD was designed by senior Judy Blaskovich with advice from Mr. Jack Bundy. Mr. Bundy is sales representative of the S. K. Smith Company of Chicago, Illinois, who processed the cover. Judy also made the ink sketch of the school on pages two and three. The title page faces are also samples of student artwork done by senior Pat Lowery.

Though the majority of the photographs were done professionally, some are the products of student efforts. Miscellaneous activity, sports, and ad pictures were taken by seniors Dave Spanier, Pete Cunningham, Daroyl McDonald, and Gary Howarth. Individual underclassman pictures were taken by Interstate Studios of Indianapolis, Indiana. Wallinger Studios of Chicago, Illinois, photographed senior portraits, group shots, and various activity pictures.

Establishing another first for the Highland High School SHIELD and perhaps for schools throughout the country, this 1965 book is quite unique in that it has been designed with four-column layout. This makes it possible to have greater picture, copy, and basic design variety than with the usual two or three-column planning. This new idea in yearbook form, along with the use of color-tint blocks, has been utilized to make the 1965 SHIELD a unique and enjoyable experience for its many readers.

Each year the SHIELD staff is faced with the same challenge — producing a book that presents the school year in a better, more interesting way than the last. Ideas, suggestions, and personalities are developed into the theme and style of a yearbook. Hopes, sacrifices, and disappointments are common among the major editors when deadlines approach. One might experience complications from miscounted copy, missing pictures, and unbalanced layouts which results in dollars and cents. Parents wonder how existence is possible on warm pepsis, greasy pizzas, stale potato chips or frozen cake during the crucial days before a deadline.

But I am sure each and every staff member can express the feeling of accomplishment and pride in any degree of sacrifice made for the success of the '65 SHIELD. We have tried to express to you the outlets of interests, activities and feelings conveyed by the students throughout the year. I hope this has been accomplished in some small way for the present and most of all for the future.

None of this could have been possible without the co-operation and devotion of so many people. I wish to thank these people and Mr. Speicher for giving me the opportunity to edit the 1965 SHIELD.
